'ROUND

In our young life we have seen pitiful sights—some that made strong men weep and women faint.

We've seen a poor child on Christmas day weeping because he didn't see his electric train from Santa Claus.

We've seen another broken hearted kiddie weep silently watching his father playing with his toys.

We've seen a poor little girl's eyes brighten and glisten when she was presented with a number of Christmas toys by neighbors, after she had been told on Christmas eve that Santa couldn't visit her house because father had no work.

We've seen other sorrowful sights that have brought tears to our eyes, and we know that if they were told you, you would break down and cry.

But the most pathetic sight we have ever seen (and the very memory of it brings a hard lump to our throat) is that of a husband walking down the street Christmas day wearing a tie his wife had presented him.

He was conscious that the tie was, well, rather loud. In fact, it was so loud that a number of children gathered on the street when he was a block away, waiting to see the elephants and the clowns.

It would have made a steam calliope turn green with envy—and if a certain radio store owner here in town who persists in setting his sets outside of the store and turning them on full blast, had heard it, he would have curled up and died from shame.

The husband with the cravat knew that he was attracting attention but—well, what could he do?

If he didn't wear the tie, his wife would insist that he didn't like the present. And if he did wear it, it would please the frau but draw down upon his head a general razzberry.

But to him we extend a word of cheer—just wear that tie two more days, Buddy; bear up under your sorrow and difficulty—and then ditch the dogged thing back of the stove.

Counsel for Cannon claimed his client the victim of newspaper persecution. However, Justice of Peace Wilson ruled the only evidence admissible was that the checks had been issued.

Cannon was accused of issuing $171 in checks in connection with the operation of the Robert E. Lee Military school, which he promoted. An information will be filed in Superior Court here, where trial will be held.

ADDED TO

Work on two Richmond school projects was well under way today, and when completed are expected to add materially to the educational advantages of the city.

The six room addition at the Woodrow Wilson junior high school was reported nearly 50 percent complete. Rain was not expected to hamper work there, as a roof will soon be over the structure, which will enable workmen to continue their labor under shelter should rain fall in the near future.

P. M. Sanford, the contractor has 120 days in which to do the work, but is was predicted he would have the task completed long before that date.

CRASH HEAD
GETS 10 TO 100 YEARS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—UP—Gilbert H. Beesmyer, who confessed to defaulting with $8,000,000 in Guaranty Building & Loan association deposits, was sentenced today to serve a maximum term of from 10 to 100 years in San Quentin penitentiary.

He received a sentence of from one to 10 years on each of 10 counts of grand theft on which he was indicted. Superior Judge Walton Wood ordered that the sentence run consecutively.

The former general manager of the guaranty organization stood nervously, twisting his hands and trembling about lips. He had submitted a plea of guilty Monday for his earlier plea of not guilty.

Beesmyer looked into the eyes of Judge Wood as the court passed sentence. Not once did he face the throne in the courtroom. Most of those present were believed to be depositors in the institution he wrecked. He had little to say later. "I guess the judge said it all."

The district attorney's office announced that Beesmyer must serve at least six years and six months of his 10-year minimum sentence, unless pardoned by the governor, before he will be eligible for parole. Credits for good behavior would win a reduction of his 10 year term to 6 years, 6 months, but he would have to serve the 100 years if held to the maximum penalty.

The report also says that considerable information of conditions in the United States and other countries were secured through reports of English envoys to their foreign office, but it did not say how these reports were procured by Russian agents.

Slayer Of Party
Host Dies In S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—UP—Death came to Amedeo Mirorini, 40, Antioch rancher in a hospital here today after he had shot and killed his friend, Daniel Menchetti, 44, in an apartment here Tuesday.

In the band of his hat police found a note saying, "I am doing this for my own good, good luck to everybody."

Mirrorini was said to have requested a $200 loan from Menchetti, and when refused shot the latter and then turned the gun on himself. The two men were good friends in Italy. Mirrorini begged police to shoot him when he was brought to an emergency hospital, saying "I have killed my best friend."

Menchetti's wife witnessed the shooting. She had only been in this country a few months following her marriage in Italy.

MANY AIDED
BY LOCAL GROUP

With 19 Richmond organizations co-operating to make Christmas a happy day for the needy of the city, 1314 persons received aid, which might have not been given had the plan not been instituted under the leadership of George Sanderson, Veterans' service officer.

Every agency which co-operated to make the relief work a success was praised by the chairman as were many individuals who did their share to make the drive a benefit to all.

A total of 241 baskets were distributed for Christmas by these organizations aided by the contributions of merchants and private citizens. In previous years each organization had done a certain amount of relief work, which in many instances was duplicated by another group.

This year under a central committee the relief work was spread over the entire field, as it was more than has ever been in case in previous years, it was reported.

All the interested parties admitted that leadership was the only thing that was needed to make the aid plan a success. It was found in the person of George Sanderson, who expects to do his share next year when the same problem will be faced.

Contributions were received from the following: Quality Market, Fair Market, Ludewig Meat Market, Harry Bottger, proprietor of Mammy's Place; P. O. Rupp, E. M. Downer, George Thornton, R. Benton, Ladies of the Grand Army, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Scofield, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 26.—UP—Fifteen months after their deaths in a snowstorm over the woods near Lake Chibougamau, bodies of the fliers, W. H. Cannon, pilot, and Leonie Lizotte, mechanic, will be brought back here tomorrow.

Discovery of the bodies was revealed today when two Indians arrived at Roberval with the wing fabric of the Cannon-Lizotte plane.

CHINESE TO DENY ALL CHARGES

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—UP—When court convenes here Monday afternoon before Municipal Judge Sylvain Lazarus, Lui Fook, aged Chinese charged with the slaying of his mistress, Mrs. Rosetta Baker, will take the stand to deny the charges.

This was the announcement made today by William J. Gloria, defense attorney as he prepared his final battle in court to prevent his client from being bound over to the superior court for trial.

In his announcement, Gloria said, "Lui Fook is innocent and has nothing to conceal. Why shouldn't he take the witness stand and deny his guilt?"

A court order, permitting him to examine certain of Lui's effects now held by the police will be asked by Gloria, it was revealed.

Gloria declared that it is his belief that some of the articles taken by police when Lui was arrested have certain proof that he did not and couldn't have committed the murder. He stated he was confident that the order would be issued.

Two surprise witnesses will be "sprung" at the hearing.

He said to have talked with Mrs. Ray Dix, housekeeper for Mrs. Baker before the murder about the cuts on Lui's finger, which police insist he suffered in a death grapple with Mrs. Baker. These two witnesses, the attorney said, will tell the court that the Chinese cut his finger on a broken window pane days before the murder.

The prosecution regards the cut as a strong piece of evidence against the aged "house boy."

Among other witnesses whom Gloria intends to call to the stand is Mrs. Anne Nichols, society woman, who will be charged with witness and will tell of Lui's loyalty and affection to his "boss missy."

"In all," Gloria declared, "we intend to call five or six witnesses."

BILLY THE KID

NOW SHOWING AT FOX

"Billy the Kid" King Vidor's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which will open today at the Fox-California theater, is a "western" story, but not a fictional one.

Although the story is based on Walter Noble Burns' "The Saga of Billy the Kid" the plot is not a figment of someone's imagination, but the recreation of an historical character, the notorious William Bonney or "Billy the Kid" who though only twenty-one, gained repute as the most dangerous man of the west.

Vidor does not attempt to give all of the melodramatic career of this young man. All of the highlights, however, are retained, the story starting with an incident which makes "The Kid" a firm ally of the English ranch owner, Tunstun, and his partner, McSweeney.

Claire, Tunstun's fiancée, comes from England to marry him, but the Donovan gang of outlaws waylay Tunstun and kill him in cold blood on his wedding day. "The Kid" swears to get every member of the posse who killed his friend. A fight in the Donovan saloon precedes the biggest event of the story, the historic three-day siege of the McSweeney home by the Donovan gang. This ends in the burning of the home and the tumultuous exit through rifle fire of the defenders.

General Lew Wallace offers Billy a pardon if he will surrender, but he refuses. He is caught by Sheriff Pat Garrett and brought to Lincoln County to General Wallace with another plea for the boy, but in meantime "The Kid" escapes, shooting his way out of the hands of the law. Hunted, he grows a new reputation, but is discovered by the posse and finally captured.

The pretentious cast includes John Mack Brown in the title role, Wallace Beery as Sheriff Garrett, Kay Johnson as Claire, Karl Dane as a comic cowboy and Wyndham Standing, Russell Simpson, Blanche Frederick, Roscoe Ates, Warner P. Richardson, J. Neilson McDowell, Jack Carlyle, John Beck, Marguerita Padula and Aggie Herring as historical characters.

Wanda Tuckock did the screen adaptation and the dialogue was written by Lawrence Stallings and Charles MacArthur.

July Wheat Prices Drop To New Low

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—UP—Persistent bears against the grain market unwarmed on the Chicago board of trade today to send the price of July wheat crashing to the lowest levels since 1896.

With most of the traders assent the sellers' wheat started the price plunge which experts said could not possibly have occurred on a normal trading day.

July deliveries fell to 63 3/4 cents per bushel, breaking the low figure of 68 1/8 cents in 1901. In 1896 July wheat sold for 54 1/4 cents per bushel.

At the bottom of the price skid, slight buying support brought the closing quotation up to 68 cents.

When undisturbed, wheat prices also were made on May wheat, the Grain Stabilization corporation, acting for the federal government, stepped in to buy all offerings at its pegged price of 81 1/2 cents per bushel.

Girl May Die Of Christmas Burns

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—UP—A tragic aftermath of Christmas was the announcement of physicians tonight that Miss Ottila Kurz, 24, probably would die because of burns she suffered when her false whiskers caught fire while playing Santa Claus.

Miss Kurz, arrayed in Santa's red suit, was distributing gifts to the children of her sister, Mrs. Mary Frederickson, when she stooped too close to a lighted candle on a Christmas tree.

Her cotton whiskers flared. In an instant her whole flimsy suit was ablaze. Mrs. Frederickson suffered serious burns in trying to save her.

Dividend Is Declared By Local Bank

For the fiftieth consecutive time the directors of the Mechanics bank of Richmond declared a dividend on their stock when they met recently.

A 12 percent dividend was declared this year to keep the record maintained by the bank since it opened its doors for business 25 years ago, clear.

More than 90 percent of the bank's stock is owned by Richmond residents. E. M. Downer, president declared in commenting upon the favorableness of the situation.

Since 1905 when the bank started business it has been the policy of the concern to devote its energies and resources to the rebuilding of Richmond, Downer said.

The dividend was declared to be much higher than the average return paid investors in other East Bay bank stocks.

BODIES HUNTED IN LAUNCH WRECK

SAUSALITO, Dec. 26.—UP—Wreckage of the small speed boat which sank near here today was found this afternoon but search for the three of its passengers was still unsuccessful 15 hours after the accident.

Ten other men who were on the little craft when it went down were rescued by swift work of two life boat crews from the ferry boat Tamalpais.

It was the second disaster of such nature in the San Francisco bay region during the past week. Nine persons had been drowned when a launch foundered on Tomales bay.

"This accident is another example, I fear that at Tomales bay, that small boats should not be overloaded," Capt. Carl Olson, of the Tamalpais, who directed the rescue work today, said. "No such number of persons should take a chance of going out in a boat like that."

Those believed to have drowned were C. P. Rogers, longshoreman, Ben Can Roy, cook, and William Pinkerton, railroad fireman.

The boat in which they were riding was a tender of the Yacht Janitor.

Sam Bowman, deckhand of the Janitor, was held by police for questioning about charges that members of the party on the speedboat had been drinking.

Pittsburg Cafe Patrons Robbed

MARTINEZ, Dec. 26.—Patrons of the Pittsburg lunch room were lined up early this morning and robbed by a lone bandit who scooped up $55 from the cash drawer before he fled.

The man entered the place at 6:30 a. m. and flourished a gun. The six men were lined up against the wall and searched. Only a small amount of money was gotten from them.

Police and sheriff forces had slender clues to the identity of the man who was believed to have fled from the city in an automobile.

MONGOL REVOLT IS SEEN BY WRITER

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The following article was written for the United Press by Alex. V. Karpoff, son of the well-known White Russian general, who commanded a regiment of Russian troops in the Chinese civil wars in Shantung in 1925-26.

By ALEXIS V. KARPOFF
Written Exclusively for the United Press

PEIPING, Dec. 26.—UP.—I have just returned from Urga, capital of Outer Mongolia, where Soviet Russia has organized the Young Mongols into an effective Soviet republic. My observations there convince me that it will not be long before the young Mongols rebel against the Chinese, and invade North Manchuria.

I was taken to Urga by the Russian secret service, under virtual arrest, but I was treated very well, and the Soviet high advisor to the Outer Mongolian government, V. Gekker, was especially kind to me and talked at some length of his ambitious plans for the young Mongols. From my conversations I am convinced that the Soviets encourage the ambitions of the young Mongols to rebel against the Chinese, and that an invasion of the Barga district, of which Hallar is the capital, may be expected soon. The Mongols believe that this district rightly belongs to them, and the Soviets are helping them to capture the district. The population of Barga is largely Mongolian, and the Mongols do not like Chinese rule. The Soviets are impatient with the Chinese because they have failed to settle the Chinese-Eastern railway controversy. If the young Mongols take Barga, they will control a large section of the railway which links China with Europe through Russia. The young Mongols like the Russians, and will do whatever they tell them. I was told that Japan has warned the Soviets that they will not countenance military action which would involve Harbin. So the Soviets have apparently decided that they must take military action, if necessary, farther north. The Barga district is the ideal place for such action because the young Mongols will cooperate cheerfully.

WORLD FAIR TO SHOW MAN'S PROGRESS

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—UP.—Man's conquest of the forces of nature, how he has subdued these giants and harnessed them to do his bidding that the labors of the world as well as provisions for his every need be the theme of the Century of Progress—Chicago World's Fair of 1933.

Rufus C. Dawes, president of a Century of Progress, expresses the primary purpose of the exposition as the portrayal of "the nature and significance of scientific discoveries and of the changes in living conditions brought about by their application in industry."

To accomplish this three exhibits are being prepared: First, a basic science exhibit showing the nature of important discoveries in the realm of pure science and the methods by which they were made; second, applied science exhibits showing the development of various industries as affected by these scientific discoveries; third, a portrayal of the social changes and problems which have been the consequences of this application of science to industry.

The exposition will tell in material form the story of man's rise. The story of the steam engine, the story of electricity from Faraday's discovery of the electro-magnet, the internal combustion engine of the automobile and the airplane, the history of X-rays and radium, of bacteriology.

These stories will be told, as far as possible, in diagrams and charts, but in the original machines where possible, in reproductions and models, even moving models, sometimes even models which the spectator himself can operate.

To show what all these developments mean to civilization, man's welfare, anthropological and sociological exhibits will be given a prominent place in the exposition. The contrast between man's environment now and earlier will be illustrated by the exhibits telling the story of man's rise, on this continent at least, from the most primitive times to the present. The anthropological exhibit will portray the life and culture of the early inhabitants of America.

Antioch Boy In Gun Feud Dying

STOCKTON, Dec. 26.—UP.—With his left eye shot out and some bloodstain in his body, Durrell Duncan, 21, of Antioch was in a hospital here in a serious condition tonight while Alfred Barbagello, was being held by Antioch police for the shooting which was said to have been the outcome of a family feud.

Duncan was shot early yesterday as he was on the top of Barbagello's chicken house with another man, the latter reported. Barbagello told authorities he was awakened and called out to the men to leave the place, and when they refused he fired a double-barreled shotgun at them. The identity of the second man had not been learned.

Duncan was brought to the hospital here and authorities were to leave from Antioch tonight to get a statement from him. It was feared that Duncan would not survive.

Storm Sweeps

Southern Sea

PANAMA CITY, C. Z., Dec. 26.—UP.—A terrific storm reported the worst in years, swept the Caribbean sea today, endangering lives of seamen and hampering shipping.

Three seamen were washed overboard by a mountainous wave, the tanker Duncannon reported in a wireless received through the steamship Atlantida.

The Atlantida of the United Fruit line arrived today. One passenger on board was removed to a hospital, suffering with fractured ribs. Another was painfully injured and many were bruised when the ship was tossed by the storm.

LURE OF BLACK GOLD BRINGS PROSPECTORS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 26.—UP.—The "get rich quick" lure of oil producing areas is irresistible.

Within two years after the discovery of the Oklahoma City pool, scores of promoters, and confidence men have edged into the ranks of legitimate operators to reap huge profits.

Elaborate offices opened since after news of the famous old Mary Sudik and Morgan-Stout gushers was announced.

Each new promoter had new schemes for the gullible public.

Many of these operators have been under the surveillance of postal authorities for a year. More recently the Better Business Bureau here has opened an investigation of alleged fraudulent promotion.

The government struck its first blow last summer by arresting S. E. J. Cox, Cox, a debonair business man, served a 33-month sentence in Leavenworth with Dr. Frederick Cook, arctic explorer, in a Fort Worth oil fraud scheme.

Operation of Cox's Universal oil and gas company, now in receivership, is typical of many operations here, Roy St. Louis, United States district attorney, said.

"Loop holes in state blue sky laws makes mail fraud our only recourse for prosecution," Lewis said.

H. G. Mitchell, head of the Oklahoma City Better Business Bureau, told the United Press the mulcting of the public is a detriment to raising capital for oil development. Already, retail merchants complain of a shortage in purchasing power by wage earners who have invested money in unit shares.

The Real Hitch
The real hitch to the share holder is poration.

For conservation and market purposes, Oklahoma producers, cooperating with the state corporation commission, limit the production of oil on a proration basis.

In the Oklahoma City field, the current order requires all wells must be shut in after an eight hour test flow for 65 days. Then they may produce four hours each 12-day period if all underproduced wells in the field are caught up. Thus the net return from a 24,000 barrels gusher under proration would be less than $1000 monthly, giving each $100 share holder a monthly income of $2.5 if the well maintains its initial flow, a case seldom known in the field, veteran operators said.

Monaco Prince Declares Self To Be Dictator

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Dec. 26.—UP.—Prince Louis II, ruler of Monaco, today declared himself dictator of his tiny gaming principality and thereby replied to demands of the restless populace that he attempt to take over the business of ruling the country.

A series of popular demonstrations against the prince came to a climax last week when a mob gathered at the station and shouted imprecations at the ruler as he returned from one of his frequent extended visits to Paris. They demanded he stay at home. The prince's decree suspended the municipal council. His action made him an absolute dictator in Monaco.

There were indications that the dictatorship might be only temporary, pending the solution of political problems which have caused recurrent outbursts. It was believed elections probably would be held to select new councilors. There was a chance, however, that the prince would try ruling indefinitely. He could point out, it was intimated, that he was merely following the popular demand that he take an interest in things or get out.

Gas Kills Two On Christmas Eve

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—UP.—The bodies of C. W. Towner, 58, printer, and his wife, 35, who had apparently been asphyxiated while celebrating Christmas eve, were found this afternoon.

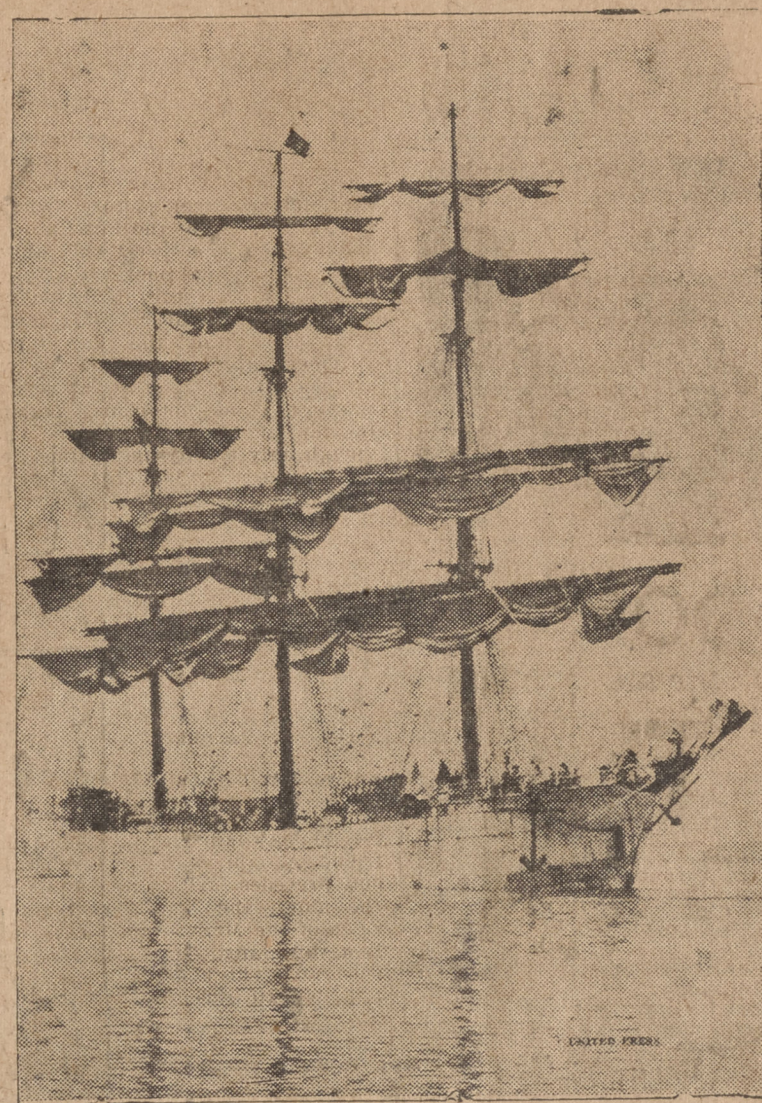

They were discovered side by side, and only a few feet from a decorated Christmas tree. Gas was flowing from a cooking plate in the closed room.

Deputy Coroner Michael Brown said that deaths were accidental and had apparently occurred Wednesday night. He found a bank book showing Towner had $4000 on deposit in a local bank.

England May Retain Famous Wright Plane

LONDON, Dec. 26.—UP.—Great Britain may retain forever the Wright brothers' airplane.

Two years ago the airplane—considered the most valuable aviation treasure in the world and one for which it is reported Henry Ford would gladly pay $200,000—was placed on display at the Science Museum here. The museum has a five-years' option on it.

Museum officials said that the box-shaped craft may never leave England. They are extremely anxious to retain it and are making every possible effort to gain absolute possession of the craft.

Wilbur and Orville Wright's airplane hangs suspended from the archway into the aviation exhibit of the museum.

Prize Entry
The airplane is the prize entry and occupies the most conspicuous position. Hanging above the reach of eager fingers, it appears like an overgrown box-kite. Wings seem frail and the body anything but strong. The familiar sight of Orville Wright lying on his stomach as he guided the model, which was to become another wonder, is represented by a figure dressed in a gray cap, gray and white checked tie, brown leather gloves and a black coat.

Underneath the Wright brothers' machine a printed description relates that the airplane was used on December 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, as the first power driven man-carrying airplane to make a free, controlled and sustained flight.

The famous picture of the plane taking off on the down-hill, wooden runway also appears. The shovel with a small can of paint on grease with a stick or brush stuck in it, is dug into the sand.

Lilienthal's 1895 glider, Weiss' model glider, a model of Wright's airplane used in the autumn of 1908 at Le Mans, France, Blériot's 1909-10 type monoplane and Frost's experimental Ornithopter made in 1902 are but a few of the aviation treasures found in the exhibition. Models of every type of airplanes used during the war are arranged

"ABE MARTIN" CREATOR IS CALLED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 26.—UP.—"Kin" Hubbard, who put his thoughts in the mouth of "Abe Martin" for newspaper readers throughout the nation to chuckle over, died suddenly here today.

The famous cartoonist, christened Frank McKinney Hubbard 62 years ago and called "Kin" by everyone who ever knew him during his long career as small town actor, artist of sorts and philosopher of the first degree, succumbed to heart disease before his wife could call a physician.

His death meant also the end of "Abe Martin" sage of Brown county. The drawing of Abe was such that no one but Hubbard could have done it. And the philosophical lines which appeared under the cartoon each day in newspapers throughout the land were so striking and so completely in accord with the character of Abe that no one but Hubbard could have written them.

Hubbard first drew "Abe Martin" for the Indianapolis News. He was besieged with offers of fame and fortune elsewhere, but Hubbard stayed in his beloved Indiana. Whereupon fame and fortune came to him nevertheless, simply because "Abe Martin" became one of the most popular of the newspaper features after Hubbard started to syndicate it on a nationwide basis in 1910.

"Abe Martin" usually sloughed against a fence post in his tiny newspaper space, one column wide and four inches deep. Sometimes he sat whittling in front of the general store. Always he looked lazy. And always he had pungent comment on one subject or another.

Why Not Let the Youngsters Do Their Own Marrying?

BISHOP MANNING'S ideas of marriage, Judge Lindsey's notions of how to wed, are taking up columns on the front pages. What is the reaction of the mother of daughters—to say nothing of the mother of sons? If she is a woman of intelligence, with a sympathetic understanding of the younger generation, surely the sanest attitude for her to take is that the marrying of her grown-up children is their affair—not hers, and certainly not the bishop's nor the judge's.

Young persons, it seems to us, should not marry until they are men and women in the eyes of the law. When they are of legal age and responsibility for their acts, marrying—like earning a living—is their business, so long as they conform to the law of the land in which they live. Each young couple should work out their own arrangements. The true philosophy of each marriage, it seems to us, is Henry James's pragmatism—the application of the test, "Does it work?"

Just as there are different kinds of successful people, so there are different kinds of successful marriages. There are youngsters, plenty of them, who like the traditional division of responsibility in married life. The young man is earning a salary on which he feels able to support a home and a family. The girl is frankly a home-lover.

As Elsa Connors, writing in The Independent Woman, puts it, "There are women, God bless them, to whom the duties of housekeeping are a real labor of love. Their hearts beat with an artist's pride as they lace the fairy cake they have created; women whose joy is in their snowy linens, their feathered pillows, their ruby jellies. For them to enter into the business world and leave their housework to others would be a great sacrifice, perhaps a tragedy."

When a girl of this type marries a young man who wants such a wife, when they both want to begin at once to raise a family, we may hope that here is a successful marriage and a happy home life in the making.

ON THE other hand, there are other young persons with different ideas. The young man is struggling and ambitious. The girl, between whom and himself there exists a mutual attraction, is not exclusively domestic in her tastes. As Mrs. Connors says, "Our social mistake is that for years we have tried to make all women housekeepers, to make them all enjoy exactly the same line of work, to make them all conform to the same mold."

But just because a girl isn't a "born housekeeper" is no sign that she cannot be a good wife—even a good mother—provided she loves her husband and is willing to contribute services outside the home to the success of their joint partnership.

The union between such a pair—even though it seems to trample on the cherished matrimonial convention of the big, strong man battling to keep the little home nest sheltered—may be just as successful and happy as any marriage anywhere.

The essential point, in any variety of married life, is that the two who have to live it shall be in agreement. Thanks to the younger generation's freedom of expression and frankness in discussion, the man and girl who both believe in fifty-fifty marriage are likely to pair off, as are the couples who prefer the older convention.

THEN let 'em live happy ever after, without advice and catechism. Even the wedding, we think, ought to be run as the bride and groom want it. Our own notion is that a simple ceremony is better sense and better taste, but we would not try to persuade a girl to give up a big wedding if her heart were set on it. Contrarywise, we think the mother most unwise and unfair who tries to wish such a wedding on an unwilling daughter.

As for parental interference afterward—well, we heard the other day of an affectionate mamma who got her daughter's three-months-husband into a corner and wanted to know, quakingly, if he still loved Alice, if he loved her passionately, etc. The only person more embarrassed and furious than he was Alice herself, and as a consequence, this pious happy and devoted young couple have avoided the vicinity of mamma ever since!

Marriage, we repeat, is the concern of the two—each two—who make it. Neither the conservatives nor the liberals of the older generation have created such a perfect institution that they should force their particular conception upon the youngsters. Let them run marriage to suit themselves. Maybe they will do a better job.

BUYING NOW!
Don't you get a provocative thrill of emotion when you throw away money on some foolish notion? On a little trick pencil you know you won't use. Or gloves that no Practical Person would choose?

Young persons, it seems to us, should not marry until they are men and women in the eyes of the law. When they are of legal age and responsibility for their acts, marrying—like earning a living—is their business, so long as they conform to the law of the land in which they live. Each young couple should work out their own arrangements. The true philosophy of each marriage, it seems to us, is Henry James's pragmatism—the application of the test, "Does it work?"

Just as there are different kinds of successful people, so there are different kinds of successful marriages. There are youngsters, plenty of them, who like the traditional division of responsibility in married life. The young man is earning a salary on which he feels able to support a home and a family. The girl is frankly a home-lover.

As Elsa Connors, writing in The Independent Woman, puts it, "There are women, God bless them, to whom the duties of housekeeping are a real labor of love. Their hearts beat with an artist's pride as they lace the fairy cake they have created; women whose joy is in their snowy linens, their feathered pillows, their ruby jellies. For them to enter into the business world and leave their housework to others would be a great sacrifice, perhaps a tragedy."

Gifts for Sporting, Dancing, Week-Ending

WHAT to give a girl for Christmas? Something that will interest her and make her approve of your judgment—both vital matters in the lives of the young—and of yours.

She is interested, above everything else, in her own daily round of activities—and, necessarily, in being smartly equipped while she is about them.

Then—
For Sports
A HOCKEY suit—trousers of orange corduroy, with a pull-on jacket buttoned closely at the throat of white suede jersey. Very inexpensive these are. The prices would astound you.

A whole skiing suit of bright colored fleece is another idea—the whole outfit with scarf, gloves and shawl beret for $16.50; others for $16.75.

Any young thing who loves the outdoors will appreciate to the point of enthusiasm an outfit of this sort—so smart, so new and so becoming to her youthful slenderness.

A calfskin or a suede coat is another good Christmas sports idea.

For Dancing
COPIES of paste jewelry—earrings, bracelets, necklaces. Prices are moderate, all the way from $2.95 up.

How about an evening bag? There are sweet ones in bright colored velvets. They should match the gown or the shoes. They have really lovely jeweled clips as ornaments. The bags are soft and pliable.

Bags embroidered in tiny seed pearls all over their surfaces—the kind you can squish in your hands if you wish because they are so delicately made. They are only $6.

White satin bags in quaint shapes to go with the period evening dresses. It's a fan season. I feel sorry for the young things at Christmas because fans are being carried but not nearly in such quantities as they will doubtless be given.

Then, take the hint, and if you feel impelled to give a fan (they are lovely looking) give a bag to match. Then, in case the college girl doesn't really want to carry her fan at a certain party she still has her bag to make her happy.

Long gloves are a happy thought—too expensive for the usual budget to encompass but so acceptable as a gift since everyone is wearing them. The soft-white shades are those most longed for.

For Week-Ends
H OW about a fitted overnight case?—such a well groomed and sophisticated thing to own with its shiny leather cover and its protecting case to be laced over all. They come in different colors with enamel

the front of the neckline. This, with every bit of handwork, is only $9.75.

Pantries with lace insets are in crepe and beautifully made. Then there are chemises with chrysanthemum leaf edges all around the neckline for a finish ending in front with a bunch of the flowers all embroidered.

Bunny jackets? Everyone wants one. They make an evening so livable and so much minus shivers after the front of the neckline. This, with every bit of handwork, is only $9.75.

You and Your Child

By Irma Morris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The Need of Companionship

"MY children don't care to play together. Each prefers his own friends. Don't you think brothers and sisters ought to play together?" How many times have I been asked this question!

It is good for brothers and sisters to play together sometimes, but not all of the time. They will enjoy one another's company the more and will quarrel less if they don't see too much of one another.

Children are better off in every way when they play with youngsters of the same age and ability as themselves. When little children play with older ones, either they are "bossed" or "given in to," both unhealthy situations. It is far better for them to be able to try out their powers in an even contest. The older child too who continually plays with younger ones is probably developing unwholesome habits. He is most likely dominating more than is good for him and receiving too much admiration and adulation.

Children, in their play together, teach one another many of the lessons of good citizenship. A child will take correction with much better grace from his peers than he will from an adult, and he is much more likely to heed the lesson. Thus, the selfish child who won't share his playthings is made to feel his group's disapproval. The child who tries to "boss" sees the other youngsters run away from him. The cowardly child is shamed into controlling himself; and so on.

It is wise for adults to interfere with the children's play just a little as possible. Let the youngsters work things out in their own way. When children are playing aimlessly, a suggestion may be in order. And when their quarreling or fighting becomes serious, we may have to step in. Unless we have been an eyewitness to the whole affair, however, it is unwise to constitute ourselves a judge. Let us be content to separate the contestants until they decide they can resume their play amicably.

Even the littlest children need the companionship of young ones of their own age. These littlest play just as much as the older ones. They play together in the social way older children do; but they will be stimulated by one another's company and will begin to learn the "give and take" of life. Very young children shouldn't have too much companionship, however; they need time to play by themselves, also.

Individual play, play with brothers and sisters, play with youngsters their own age, our children have need of all of these.

TELLING THE WORLD

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

FACTS you ought to know about Christmas: In Hollywood they never have snow. They never have frosts, cyclones, cloudbursts, earthquakes or hail, either, according to the Los Angeles Chamber of Climate. But the absence of snow makes it hard on Hollywood kiddles.

The Hollywood kiddles, you see, hear tales of Santa Claus on a national hookup. These are most likely related by a guy in New York, where they are having a swell blizzard. Old Uncle Edwin tells his kiddle public if they are real good children, why St. Nicholas will come with his sleigh and reindeer on Christmas Eve and fill their stockings chock full of toys. The Hollywood children promptly go to their parents and ask how come?

It is then up to the Hollywood parent to explain that Hollywood is gifted with blessed sunshine instead of nasty snowdrifts. The Santa Claus would have to plow through, getting flakes down the back of his neck and having his whiskers dangling with icicles.

They have to explain that Santa puts his reindeer and sleigh in a livable stable when he gets as far south as Portland, Ore., and makes the rest of the trip in an open runabout or sport car. That clears up the transportation question for the kiddles, but they are still a little doubtful how Santa is going to come down the chimney when there isn't a chimney in Hollywood to come down.

Then the parents go into another huddle and come out with the explanation that Santa jumps in through the second-story window (unless it is a bungalow) and tiptoes his way downstairs. The kiddles say that's quite a feat for a fat old gentleman like Santa Claus, to jump from his runabout through the second-story window, and maybe the parents have got him mixed up with Douglas Fairbanks.

All in all, the Hollywood parent has quite a problem at Christmas and they often wish those New York radio speakers on national hookups would keep their big mouths shut.

In Russia the problem is a little different. Lenin and Trotsky announced in 1921 there is no Santa Claus, so that settled that. Mr. Stalin this year is backing them up. The little Soviet children are therefore slightly puzzled over where the playthings come from that they find in their sox.

This year they are telling them it is the OGPU (secret police) that is doing the trick. There is a fine of 77,000,000 rubles ($1.13) and imprisonment in Siberia for a parent who doesn't believe in Santa Claus.

Florida censors have O. K'd the backless bathing suit. So you can start watching now for front and rear views in this winter's rotogravure sections.

Things are so tough in Hollywood this season the clairvoyants are telling fortunes with deuces wild.

CA DISH CA DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A sharp drop in the wholesale price of eggs assures a plentiful supply at reasonable prices for the next few days, at least. Many stores are not passing these low prices along to their customers, so it is good policy to shop around.

The chain stores, for the most part, are offering good prices on quality, grade B eggs at slight profit, and at several independent groceries, particularly in the suburbs, eggs at 38 cents a dozen will be a special today and Saturday.

Coming at the same low price is a quart of 1-cent a quart reduction on milk. This gives the housewife an opportunity to serve many nutritious egg and milk dishes without exceeding her budget limits.

A delicious main dish for luncheon, dinner or a late supper is this combination of creamed eggs with shrimp. It may be served on toast, or until crumbs are browned.

Santa Speaking About Gifts

YES, this is Santa. That is a good idea. I am getting more orders for instructive toys. There are slews of them on shop counters. Yes, I am sure sister will like the French blocks. She is in the fifth grade? Then I'm bringing a set of those. She can pick up a lot of French from them. In fact, she will gain a considerable knowledge of the language in a pleasurable way. You're welcome. Good-by.

Now that was a sensible woman. What's this? Jerusalem crickets! An order for little choo-choo cars for the baby. That kiddle is only seven months old and he will be banging his head first thing with such a toy. For a baby is one that is washable and can safely be put into the mouth. There are washable woolly balls and celluloid balls, soft stockinet dolls, celluloid balls, strings of large wooden beads in bright colors that are fast, color, animals in rubber and celluloid, floating toys—there is no end to suitable toys for the baby that are safe, so why leave a hard, dangerous train under that baby's Christmas tree?

It is strange I do not get more requests for physical exercisers. Folks must see them. The shops are full of them, and how the kiddles of all ages enjoy them! Even the two-year-old will be delighted with a doorway gym or one of those small low acting bars. The four-year-old will like a ball he can kick around and how about a two-pedal automobile to exercise in the open air? For the five-year-old there are scooters, outdoor gyms, parallel bars.

A seven-year-old will want a child's golf set or a sled for fresh air exercise. Then for the older kiddles there are ice skates, boxing gloves, punch bags, Indian clubs, skis and hockey sticks, snowshoes, a baseball equipment or a basketball set, a trapeze—there is no end to them and they are all aids to good health, therefore sensible toys.

DOUBT CAST ON POWER BODY MOVES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—UP—Doubt was cast today by Senator James E. Watson, Ind., Republican floor leader, on the Senate's jurisdiction to reconsider the nominations of the new power commissioners as produced by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Rep. Iowa, and other Western Independents.

At the same time the U. S. chamber of commerce announced the results of a referendum among its members which placed the body on record for private development and distribution of electric power, sale or lease of the government's great Muscle Shoals plant, and as little federal regulation of the industry as possible.

Senator William E. Borah, Rep. Idaho, however, said he had no doubt that the Senate under its rules could recall the nominations by majority vote, even though the commissioners have been issued commissions and given the oath of office.

The spread of the fracas resulting from the commission's act in discharging Chief Accountant William V. King, and Solicitor Charles A. Russell, however, indicated that the Senate was closely divided, with prospects of a hot fight, on the question.

It was regarded as likely—unless King and Russell are reinstated, a step now reported to be under consideration—that an extended debate may ensue when the Senate meets again Jan. 5.

The conflict of jurisdiction between the executive and legislative branches as to the Senate's jurisdiction to reconsider the nominations of chairman George Otis Smith and the other four members of the commission is unusual.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Dem. Mont., a leading legal expert, contends that a Senate resolution asking the president to return the nomination is sufficient.

There is also some speculation as to whether President Hoover could or might refuse to comply with such a request if decided upon by the Senate.

Watson, in addition to arguing that the Senate has no further jurisdiction over the nominations, said that even if the question is brought up, he was confident President Hoover's supporters could defeat a move to oust the commissioners.

The action was expected to carry the operators of these wells over the depression accentuated by announcement that the Prairie Oil & Gas company would withdraw as a purchaser January 1.

Geologists regarded the move as saving the wells, which, they said, would cease to produce if they were shut in.

The conference will be resumed Saturday when names of the companies accepting the crude probably will be announced and details of the system worked out.

DEATH TOLL IN S. A. QUAKE GROWS

SAN ANTONIO DE LOS COBRES, Argentina, Dec. 26.—UP—New earth tremors were felt at La Poma today, greatly adding to the panic of the people, already frightened by the violent earthquake which early Tuesday spread death and destruction through northwestern Argentina.

No further casualties were reported, however. The number of bodies recovered remained at 31 today. At least 50 distinct shocks have been registered since Tuesday.

Eye-witnesses arriving from La Poma, center of the quake, reported that only two buildings in the town of 3,000 persons remained undamaged.

Tales of the disaster reaching here from the mountainous, isolated La Poma district, said the hero of the disaster was an unnamed telegraph operator. The man, clad only in night clothes, rushed to the telegraph office, already badly damaged, and vainly sought to establish communications with Salta, capital of the province.

He finally was forced to flee for his life when the ceiling crashed. Taking a telegraph set with him he rushed into an open field near the town, and connecting his instrument to the Salta wire succeeded in giving the report of the catastrophe.

Jesuit Order Coast Province Will Be Split

SEATTLE, Dec. 26.—UP—Rev. Walter Fitzgerald, president of the Seattle Jesuit college, announced today that a new northwest province of the Jesuit order would be organized. Rev. Fitzgerald will become vice-provincial of the new district, with headquarters at Gonzaga University, in Spokane, Wash.

Official sanction for the reorganization was received from Rome.

The Pacific coast province will be divided into units. The northwest province will include Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, and will be under the direction of Father Fitzgerald. The southern unit will be directed by Father Piet, S. J., of San Jose, Calif., formerly director of the entire Pacific coast province.

The new movement will be similar to an arrangement used prior to 1908. During that year, it was said, the two Pacific coast units were combined into the Pacific coast province.

Slayer Finds No Welcome Mat

LANCASTER, Ohio, Dec. 26.—UP—John Woods, 14, sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of William Meeker, 60, spent many days in court recently trying to keep out of jail, only to lose, now that he has received a sentence, there are no institutions in the state that will accept him.

Supt. A. H. Karsb, of the Lancaster Boys' school, refused today to accept him because the institution does not take boys who have been given definite sentences.

Woods received a life term when he pleaded guilty to second degree murder at St. Clairsville, a fact that disqualifies him at Lancaster. The court cannot change the sentence, nor can Ohio state prison accept him, for he was sentenced to Lancaster.
